Gstaad has a network of 250 kilometers of slopes, and after a day out enjoying the powder or people watching the hotel's spacious and tastefully furnished rooms provide the perfect retreat to unwind. Alternatively, guests can pay a visit to the beautiful Bellevue SPA, a meditative hideaway where guests can forget all worries. The Asian-themed spa features a wide variety of baths or saunas and rejuvenating spa treatments such as the signature Bellevue massage, which uses the precious and ultimate in luxury, a gold massage oil. The spa has started to use Cellcosmet products, an exclusive range which has been specifically designed to intensely stimulate and rebalance the natural functions for complete skin revitalization. By using the Cellcosmet products, the Bellevue SPA now offers a new range of treatments for men, with an exceptional anti-aging effect and the chance to improve the male sense of well being.

During the ski season, Gstaad lives up to its reputation as the perfect Alpine resort. The picturesque village is increasingly cosmopolitan, although it has been able to retain its authentic atmosphere and a feel of traditional Swiss life. The narrow streets and lanes are filled with old timber houses with chic nightclubs and stylish restaurants dotted in-between. When off the slopes, the sophisticated crowds spend their time between fashionable designer boutiques, cozy bistros and smart cocktail bars.
